

CS-551 AI Project

Group #27

AI Usage Declaration

We hereby solemnly declare that Claude, an AI language model developed by Anthropic, was used for a specific and limited portion of this project, as detailed below.

Claude's use was restricted exclusively to the development of the front-end interface of our project. Specifically, our project incorporates a Python library called Gradio, which was used to build the interactive user interface. All code that makes use of Gradio's functionality — including the layout, components, and interface logic — was generated with the assistance of Claude.

All remaining code, including the importing of libraries and datasets, the training of models, and the plotting and visualization of results, was written entirely by hand by our group, without any AI-generated contribution.

We affirm that this declaration accurately reflects the full extent of AI usage in this project, and that all other components not explicitly mentioned above represent our own independent work.